

Uber Public Safety

At Uber, we are committed to placing safety at the heart of everything we do. Our technology connects the physical and digital worlds, enabling mobility and delivery at the push of a button. The Public Safety team promotes safety on our platform, and in our communities, by partnering with law enforcement and public health authorities around the world.

The Public Safety team is focused on enhancing community safety, protecting user privacy and fostering trusted relationships. We support law enforcement partners in responding to safety incidents and requests related to criminal investigations. We have also worked closely with public health authorities throughout the COVID-19 Pandemic to support contact tracing efforts and help educate users on the guidance from health experts.

Public Safety Liaison

Our Liaison team is composed of former law enforcement professionals who use their knowledge and experience to advise our business on policy matters, inform operational development, and create proactive safety solutions. Liaisons are also responsible for working directly with public health and law enforcement agencies on our public safety response.

Public Safety Response

The Public Safety Response Team (PSRT) works worldwide, 24 hours a day, reviewing and responding to data requests from law enforcement and public health authorities. The PSRT is comprised of experienced privacy and safety professionals, trained in handling requests related to criminal investigations and data disclosures to law enforcement.
